2.4. In some cases while using the functionality of the Organizer's Website, personal data of Data Subjects may be processed for the purpose of profiling. However, such profiling does not result in any automated decision-making producing legal effects on Data Subjects or affecting them in a similarly significant manner. The Data Subject has the right to object to such profiling by contacting the Organizer (e.g. via Google Analytics opt-out tools).

2.5. In the event the Organizer becomes aware that a Data Subject has acted in violation of generally applicable laws, the Organizer may process the Data Subject's personal data to the extent necessary to determine the extent of the Data Subject's liability, based on Article 6(1)(f) GDPR – legitimate interest of the Organizer in pursuing and protecting against claims.

3. TRANSFER OF DATA TO THIRD COUNTRIES

3.1. As a rule, the Organizer does not transfer personal data outside the European Economic Area. However, the Organizer uses analytical tools (including Google Analytics) operated by providers based outside the EEA. In such cases, data transfers are carried out with appropriate safeguards, including Standard Contractual Clauses (SCCs) approved by the European Commission.

4. RECIPIENTS OF DATA

4.1. The Organizer may entrust the processing of personal data of Data Subjects to third parties for the purpose of performing certain activities. The recipients of Data Subjects' data may include: hosting provider, electronic mail operator, software company, event software provider, marketing agencies, volunteers, partners co-organizing the Conference, provider of the service for sending e-mails, accounting firm, law firm, entities providing cloud solutions and other solutions used by the Organizer in its current activities that involve the processing of personal data.

4.2. Personal data collected by the Organizer may also be made available to relevant state authorities or institutions (law enforcement agencies, courts, security services) authorized to access them under generally applicable laws, or to other persons and entities — in cases provided by generally applicable laws.

4.3. Each entity to which the Organizer entrusts personal data for processing, based on a personal data processing entrustment agreement ("Entrustment Agreement"), shall guarantee an appropriate level of security and confidentiality of personal data processing. An entity that processes personal data based on the Entrustment Agreement may only process this personal data through another entity if the Organizer has previously allowed for that.

4.4. Under this Privacy Policy, personal data cannot be disclosed to unauthorized entities unless the Data Subject has previously expressed written consent to such actions.

5. RIGHTS OF DATA SUBJECTS

5.1. Each Data Subject has the right to:

(a) delete the personal data collected about them, both from the system belonging to the Organizer and from the databases of entities that the Organizer cooperates or has previously cooperated with;

(b) restrict the processing of their personal data;

(c) request the transfer of personal data collected by the Organizer, including the right to receive it in a structured, commonly used and machine-readable form;

(d) request access to their personal data and demand their rectification;

(e) object to the processing of their personal data;

(f) withdraw their consent at any time without affecting the lawfulness of processing carried out on the basis of consent before its withdrawal;

(g) lodge a complaint with the supervisory authority — the President of the Personal Data Protection Office (UODO), ul. Stawki 2, 00-193 Warsaw.

5.2. The exercise of the rights of data subjects may be carried out in particular through the communication channels referred to in paragraph 1.2 of this Privacy Policy.

5.3. To exercise any of the above rights, please contact us at: office@deeptechsummit.eu. This will allow the Organizer to take action as soon as possible.

6. OTHER DATA

6.1. The Organizer may store HTTP requests and therefore some information about Data Subjects may be stored in server log files, including: the IP address of the computer from which the request came, the station name of the Data Subject – identification implemented by the HTTP protocol, the date and system time of registration and arrival of the request, the number of bytes sent by the server, the URL of the page previously visited by the Data Subject, information about the Data Subject's browser, and information about errors that occurred during the execution of the HTTP transaction. Logs may be collected as material for proper administration. Access to this data is available only to persons authorized to administer the Organizer's IT system. Log files may be analyzed to compile statistics of traffic and errors. Such summaries do not identify Data Subjects.

6.2. The Organizer may use Google Analytics and other analytical tools whereby the Organizer has access to information about Data Subjects, including: operating system and web browser, time spent on the Website, age range, gender, approximate location, and interests determined by online activity. This data may be anonymized or pseudonymized. Where combined with other information, it may constitute personal data within the meaning of the GDPR.

7. SECURITY

7.1. The Organizer shall ensure the security of personal data of Data Subjects. To this end, the Organizer has implemented appropriate security and personal data protection measures that take into account the risks associated with personal data processing processes. In particular, the Organizer employs relevant technical and organizational means to effectively secure personal data against unauthorized access, theft, change, loss, damage or destruction, as well as processing in violation of GDPR provisions, including the use of SSL certificates. The Organizer's collections of personal data are stored on secured servers, and personal data is also protected by the Organizer's internal procedures on personal data processing and information security policy.

7.2. Notwithstanding the above, the Organizer notes that the use of the Internet and services provided electronically may involve the risk of malicious software (malware) entering a person's information and communication system and device, as well as gaining access to data, including personal data, by third parties. In order to minimize such risks, each person should use appropriate technical protection (anti-virus programs) or other means of protecting their identity on the Internet.

8. COOKIES

8.1. In order for the Organizer's Website to function properly, the Organizer uses cookies ("Cookies"). Cookies are textual information stored on the Data Subject's device (computer or smartphone) that can be read by the Organizer's Website system or third-party data communications systems.

8.2. The Organizer uses two types of Cookies: (a) session cookies, which are deleted permanently when the browser session ends; (b) permanent cookies, which remain after the end of the browser session until their deletion.

8.3. Cookies may contain identifiers and information related to the use of the website. In some cases, such data may constitute personal data, especially when combined with other information such as IP addresses or user behaviour.

8.4. Cookies generated directly by the Organizer cannot be read by other services. External cookies (i.e. cookies placed by entities cooperating with the Organizer) can be read by an external server.

8.5. The Data Subject may independently change the settings regarding Cookies at any time, specifying the conditions for their storage, through the settings of the Internet browser or the configuration of the service on the Organizer's Website (cookie consent banner). Non-essential cookies (e.g. analytics or marketing) are used only after obtaining the Data Subject's consent via the cookie banner.

8.6. The Data Subject may independently disable the storage of Cookies on his/her device at any time, in accordance with the instructions of the web browser manufacturer, but this may result in the unavailability of some or all of the functionality of the Organizer's Website.

8.7. The Data Subject may independently delete Cookies stored on his/her device at any time, in accordance with the instructions of the web browser manufacturer.

8.8. The Organizer uses its own cookies for the following purposes: authentication of Data Subjects on the Organizer's Website and maintenance of their sessions; configuration of the Organizer's Website and customization of its content to Data Subjects' preferences or behavior; analysis and audience research, including the number of clicks and paths taken by Data Subjects on the Organizer's Website in order to improve its design and content organization, time spent on the Website, number of Data Subjects and frequency of tabs visited.

8.9. Detailed information on the handling of Cookies is available in the settings of the Internet browser used by the Data Subject.

9. DATA PROTECTION OFFICER

9.1. The Organizer has not appointed a Data Protection Officer (DPO), as no legal obligation to do so arises from the nature of the processing activities carried out. Matters related to personal data protection are handled directly by authorized persons within the Organizer's organization.

10. FINAL PROVISIONS

10.1. This Privacy Policy enters into force on May 1, 2026.
